SUBPOSTOFFICE IS MOVED.

Taken From Union Station to Neighboring Building.

The branch of the St. Louis post office which has been quartered since the new Union Station in the extreme castern end of the station, was suddenly moved Friday night. All day Saturday and last night a rign, which read, "Removed to No. 1821 Market Street," graced the door of the former post office.

The new office, which is temporary, divides quarters with a ticket broker's es-tablishment, and there is no cutward sign at the place to indicate that it is a post at the place to indicate that it is a post office.

The space in the depot is part of the property controlled by the Terminal Hotel Company. J. D. Abeles, president of this company, was seen last night in regard to the change. He said that he knew nothing further than that he had made a proposition three months ago to Postmaster Baumboff to renew the case on the property. The reply was to the effect that the premises would be vacated when the lease expired.

Postmaster Baumboff said: "The expenses of the Union Station post office were ten times greater than the receipts. We have offices that cost only $509 a year that do better business than the one just moved from Union Station. Because of this, three months ago I was notified by the department at Washington to get a new location for the Union Station office, but I disliked to move it out of the station, it thought I might get a more central position, in the Midway or recention-room, and, if so, the public would derive more benefits from the service. I could not do so, hence, the lease having expired, I moved the station across the street. The location of the office in the west end of the station made it a failure because 75 per cent of the persons traveling through the station go in and out by the other gates. The office cost $5.600 a year, and did not give satisfaction. The present location of the Union Station office is not permanent.

"I want to say that I am in favor of having post offices in all big institutions, and I am now figuring on opening stations, and I am now figuring on opening stations, and I am now figuring on opening stations.

An Opportunity Worthy of Mrs. Chessey of Chicago Is Ejected From Home of Mrs. Siegel.

MAY APPEAL TO COURT.

To recover her 5-year-old daughter, Myrtle, now in possession of a stranger in this city, Mrs. Minnie Chessey of Chicago, applied to the police and at the warrant of-fice, but was referred to the courts, as they alone can be of service to her. Thursday evening Mrs. Chessey went to No. 280 St. Louis avenue, the home of Mrs. Bertha Siegel, to whom the child was intrusted by the father, and was ejected from the house by Erret Hepper, Mrs. Siegel's son, after a scrimmage in which Mrs. Siegel's husband and four children, with a friend of the fam-fly, were pitted against Mrs. Chessey, her father and two sisters. The police interfered and the child was left with Mrs. Siegel, while Mrs. Chessey went to the home her father at No. 2903 North Jefferson

Mrs. Cheesey and her husband separated three years ago, and Mr. Chessey, taking Myrtle with him, came to this city. He placed the child in the care of his father's family at No. 1459 St. Louis avenue, but about a year ago took her to Mrs. Siegel. The mother supported herself as a waitress in a Chicago restaurant, and says she did not attempt to recover her child until she was informed that Myrtle was not treated well. Then she wrote her sister, Miss Net-tie Schneider of No. 2003 North Jefferson wednesday night Mrs. Chassey arrived in St. Louis and Thursday morning called upon Mrs. Siegel to get the child. Mrs. Siegel informed her that there was $30 due her for Myrtle's board and Mrs. Chessey departed.

Siegel informed her that there was $30 due her for Myrtie's board and Mrs. Chessey departed.

Thursday night, with her father and two sisters. Mrs. Chessey again went to ree Mr. Siegel. "We had to wait in the parioc more than five minutes," said Mrs. Chessey, "before Mrs. Slegel's little daughter came to ask our business. Then she said that we could not see Myrtle. So I went into the back of the house. In the kitchen were all the family, and Mrs. Slegel with my little girl in her arms was just entering the back door. I went up to the child and held out my arms to it, for Myrtle had remembered me that morning, and said that she wanted to come with me. Mrs. Slegel snatched the child back to keep her from me, and I called out to Myrtle and grabbed for her. They tossed the child about to keep her away, and I screamed. Then Mrs. Slegel's son, Ernest, grabbed me and put me out of the door."

Mrs. Slegel said that Mrs. Chessey attempted to kidnap the girl, and that she had her ejected from the house as gently as was possible.

On hearing his daughter scream, Mr. Herman Schneider ran to her. He was followed by his two daughters. Mrs. Slegel said that she herself shoved him ngainet the wall and held him there. This Schneider denies. He says that when he saw the men in the kitchen outnumbered him, he began to parley. A moment later the police came into the house in answer to Mrs. Chessey's call.

Saturday morning Mrs. Chessey called at the Four Courts and related the circumstances, but a warrant was refused and she was advised to bring legal proceedings to recover the child.

Krug, as soon as possible, alarmed the neighborhood, and a dozen farmers, led by Krug, started in hot pursuit. Watts fied toward Lexington. His horse was failing, when he met a young farmer named Crouch mounted on a horse. He induced Crouch mounted his flight.

At 12:30 his pursuers were drawing near and Watts jumped from the buggy, ran to the Chicage and Alton Railroad and boarded a freight train bound south. At Lexington they were looking for him and he was dragged out of a car by Constable Clawson. Deputy Sheriff Hoke of Pontiac had gone to Lexington searching for the fiend. He took him in charge and late Saturday afternoon started with him for Pontiac. When Hoke arrived at Pontiac with the prisoner a crowd of 1.000 had gathered about the depot. The Sheriff was there with a posse and the Chief of Police with his force. When they left the train the officers gathered around the prisoner.

The mob yelled, "Hang the beast," "Kill the brute." "Let's roast him," and the like and for a time it seemed that a lynching was inevitable, but the officers safely landed their prisoner in jail. A strong guard was stationed and at II o'clock Saturday night all was quiet. It is by no means certain, however, that the danger is past. The fact that Watts is in Pontiac is not yet widely known throughout the country, so there has been no opportunity for organization.

It is understood the little Krug girl was brutally injured. The family are very prominent and greatly esteemed. Watts is aged 35, is a fine looking man and has been held in good repute.

Lee Baker Robbed Within Sight of His Home.

Lee Baker, living at No. 721 O'Fallon street, was held up by two highwaymen at the northwest corner of Seventh and O'Falon streets last night and robbed of $1.25. An hour later Burt McNamara, 2 years old, living at No. 1451 North Tenth street, was arrested at the corner of Sixth and O'Fallon streets and taken to the Fourth District Police Station, where Baker positively identified him as one of the men who robbed him.

Baker was on his way downtown about 7:30 o'clock, and as he turned the corner at Seventh and O'Fallon streets two men walked out from a doorway and commanded him to throw up his hands. Baker did so and the men went through his pockets, taking all the money he had. Celebrate Wedding Anniversary.

APPROPRIATION BILL UNDER DISCUSSION.

In the Senate the Consideration of the Measure Leads to Spirited Debate.

$100,000 FOR SEDALIA FAIR.

Provision for Purchasing Addi tional Capitol Grounds Calls Out Opposition-Large Increases Asked For.

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT. Jefferson City, Mo., March 18.-Unraveling the tangle which beer and whisky has caused in the Assembly was hard work in the Senate Saturday afternon.

The untangling tame about when the general appropriation bill, which had been referred to a Conference Committee, came up for discussion. Charges of inconsisten cirs in the action of certain of the Senators was brought on the floor, resulting in a number of inflammatory speeches that in-terested many auditors. Two appropria-tions in the report of the Conference Committee called forth the greatest discussion They were an increase of $50,000 in the ap propriation for the State Fair at Sedalia making it $100,000, and the appropriation of $118,000 to buy the plot of ground lying be-tween the Capitol building and Governor's mansion.

Senator Drabelle, chairman of the Conference Committee of the Senate on the general appropriation bill, made the report about the middle of the afternoon session. For the next two hours and a half the bill was discussed in all its phases. Senator Davisson (Rep.) of Harrison, attempted to make a political speech and called forth some repoles that effectually closed Republican sechlerics for the remaider of the some reciles that effectually closed Republican sophistries for the remainder of the afternoon.

When the Senate sent the appropriation bill to the Conference Committee, $118,600 was set aside for the purchase of the additional grounds. During the administration of the last Republican Governor this ground was sold for a mere song, and ever since that time expets have been made to get it for some cyltable price.

Instead of cutting down the House bill, as amended by the Senate, it was increased $57,150. It is said that the Senate conferees expected that the House conferees would ask for reductions. Instead they asked for increases, and in order to keep certain items which the Senate insisted upon in the bill, the conferees were compelled to sumbit to the increases.

Senate Had Increased It.

When the report came up for consideration on the foor Senater Rubey, chalrman

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Scott were near the front.

Miss Julia Kroeger and her escort were in the right parquet.

Mrs. Edwards Whitaker chaperoned Miss Edith Collins, Miss Whitaker, and Miss Mobile Collins, Miss Mo

part of the discussion with a hurrah speech about the economies of the Missouri Legis-lature. "Spend the money." he insisted. "Be liberal. What we want is money scattered over the State. Make our instiscattered over the State. Make our institulons the handsomest in the Union. We need a new Capitol building. We can get the money. If the franchise tax is enforced there will never be a deficit. But the law was not passed to be enforced."
Continuing in the same way, he brought on a torrent of questions and queries. Senator Farris said that no man in the State was more liberal than he, but he was opposed to giving 100,000 to Sedalia and also to the appropriation for the purchase of additional Capitol grounds.

Senator Martin followed in a defense of the conference report. Senator Drabelle said that the Conference Committee could do nothing but place the $113,000 in the bill, as the Senate had voted for it. The $50,000 for Sedalia, he said, had been inserted by request.
